

The HE sector is currently undergoing unprecedented change, and here at Bradford University School of Management we believe we are uniquely positioned to take advantage of the opportunities this will bring, Dean, Dr Sarah Dixon, has a wealth of business strategic planning experience and is committed to continued and significant investment in our research and knowledge transfer base, as evidenced by the establishment of a new Centre for Managerial Excellence and the creation of a number of new research-focused posts to further strengthen this top 10 UK business school.

State-of-the-art facilities

Added to this is the recently completed £12 million investment in our campus and facilities, including fantastic new socialising and learning space focused on enabling our students to achieve their potential. We pride ourselves on our ability to help our students not only to progress in their career, through our significant investment in careers, personal development and effective learning facilities, but with our emphasis on sustainability, our aim is also to nurture students who can apply the principles of sustainable development in their professional capacity in today's challenging business environment.

International excellence in teaching and research

We are looking for people who will make an enthusiastic contribution to the mission of the School. This will include teaching and research of the highest international standards. Teaching at the School involves campus-based undergraduate, postgraduate and executive education, distance learning and overseas delivery at our international partners. Our PhD and DBA programmes are amongst the longest established in the UK, and currently enjoy full ESRC accreditation. We pride ourselves on producing high quality research of relevance to policy makers and practitioners. Applicants must be able to demonstrate that they are producing high impact research publications at the 3* and 4* level in order to satisfy our Research Excellence Framework strategy objectives. In addition to our six main research groups, we have recently launched our newest research centre, the Centre for Managerial Excellence.

Multi-disciplinary Research

Staff in the School are encouraged to work with colleagues from other research groups through our multi-disciplinary research centres; The Bradford Centre for International Business; The Enterprise and Innovation Lab; The Centre for Managerial Excellence and the newly established Sustainable Enterprise Centre. The Sustainable Enterprise Centre is an ERDF funded £6M+ investment which is a key element in the University strategy to bring together multi-disciplinary teams from across the university to support research, knowledge transfer and enterprise activities. The successful applicants will have the opportunity to contribute to these exciting new initiatives in addition to developing strong research themes in their own specialism.

Expect to be impressed

In summary, we believe we have created a warm, welcoming environment for both students and staff which is hard to beat - come and take a look!
