Overview: The Behavioural Finance Working Group conference is a two-day international meeting organized by the BFWG. It examines a wide range of behavioural finance topics within financial decision making, biases, experimental finance, corporate finance, fund management, asset pricing, forecasting, volatility, market sentiment and sociology of finance.

This year we particularly welcome submissions related to our conference theme: finance in a turbulent high inflation, rising interest post-COVID world. However, as usual, we consider papers in all areas of interest to those working in behavioural finance and related areas.

The Conference features a dedicated PhD session supported by ICAEW's Charitable Trusts.

Special Issues: Accepted papers may be invited to a special issue of:

International Review of Economics and Finance:

Further information about the submission process will be shared during the conference.

Best Paper Awards: Several best paper awards will be given during the conference. International Review of Economics and Finance and Review of Behavioural Finance will give Best Quantitative Paper Awards and the Qualitative Research in Financial Markets will give a Best Qualitative Paper Award.

Submission Deadline: We invite you to submit extended abstracts, papers in progress or full papers by Friday 10 February 2023.

To do so, please visit www.behaviouralfinance.org or email a PDF version of the manuscript to info@behaviouralfinance.org

Extended abstracts and papers-in-progress will also be considered with the understanding that they will be finished by the time of the conference.

Early submissions are encouraged.
