

The Sellinger School of Business and Management at Loyola University Maryland will host the 2020 Baltimore Area Finance Conference on April 24, 2020. The one-day conference will feature research paper presentations in the areas of corporate finance and investment.

The conference is free to attend and includes breakfast and lunch; however, registration is required. To register, please use the registration form. The deadline for registration is March 31, 2020.

For questions, please contact the conference organizer: Yoon S. Shin, Travelers Faculty Scholar and Associate Professor, Department of Finance, Sellinger School of Business and Management, Loyola University Maryland, yshin@loyola.edu.

Call for Papers

The Sellinger School of Business and Management at Loyola University Maryland invites finance researchers to submit completed papers for possible presentation at the 2020 Baltimore Area Finance Conference. We are looking for active participation among the academic institutions in the Baltimore area as well as from institutions around the U.S. We will consider research papers in the areas of corporate finance and investment. There will be a best paper award. There is no submission fee.

Detailed information on the 2018 and 2019 conference programs can be found on the Past Conferences webpage.

The deadline for paper submission is January 31, 2020. We will notify authors of accepted papers by March 15, 2020.