

Old Dominion University, Finance PhD Program Applications & Qualifications

The Department of Finance at the Strome College of Business, Old Dominion University, Virginia, USA invites graduates of MBA and Masters (MSc) programs to apply for PhD scholarships in finance. Strome College of Business is AACSB accredited institution endowed with successful academic faculty. Several scholarships are potentially available within most areas of finance. The application process will begin on February 1st and application submission deadline for the 2024-25 academic year is March 1st.

Old Dominion University is ranked as an R1 (research intensive) institution with our faculty routinely publishing in premier journals in the area of finance. Some of our graduates are endowed chairs, department chairs and deans in different institutions across the globe.

All scholarships cover a four-year period of study. Extended funding is available for successful candidates, who have excelled during their PhD studies and have a strong interest to pursue an academic career. PhD students are required to teach during the 2-3rd year of their studies. The teaching responsibilities of the Department include undergraduate teaching in finance.

Application Requirements

Each year, we welcome a select group of students to the ODU, Strome College of Business in the Ph.D. Program of Finance. The following are the general requirements that every candidate should meet in order to apply to the Finance Doctoral Program:

All applicants to the Finance Ph.D. Program are required to submit a complete application for admission. A complete application includes the online application, GRE or GMAT scores, statement of purpose, optional 1-2 pages essay, educational history and resume or CV, two (2) letters of recommendation, and academic transcripts.

Ph.D. Business Administration

ww1.odu.edu

